

ABSTRACT

A display for a digital transmitter has a graphical map with a plurality of interconnected icons. A size of each of the icons varies according to the distance of the respective icon from a central region of the display.